AUSON BURLINGAME.

New York Times (1857-1922); Mar 24, 1870; ProQuest Historical Newspapers The New York Times (1851 - 2006) pg. 5

ANSON BURLINGAME.

Some Pleasant Personal Recollections of his Life and Public Service as American Minister to China.

From the New York Democrat, March 25.

The following interesting details of the life and character of the late ANSON BURLINGAME, are kindly furnished by the New York Democrat through the medium of a very discriminating private letter, written to a gentleman in this city, by one who knew well the Minister of State, and has been several times a visitor at the court of Peking.

Mr. BURLINGAME, the Democrat says, was a man of great ability and great honor and vigor of body. I remember of his being a fellow of a Democratic Congressman, who has left his New York office, and who said that he knew much better, but, to his beautiful wife, and his two sons, only an insignificant fellow; and that BURLINGAME, when he was ill, was said to be a man with a broad mind, who was destined to be a great hero, and a great statesman. I remember of his being a fellow of a Democratic Congressman, who has left his New York office, and who said that he knew much better, but, to his beautiful wife, and his two sons, only an insignificant fellow; and that BURLINGAME, when he was ill, was said to be a man with a broad mind, who was destined to be a great hero, and a great statesman.