Here is a reproduction of one of the few photographs in existence of Amos Burlingame, late American minister to China, for whom the city of Burlingame was named by William C. Ralston, the founder. It is from the family album of County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman, a grand-nephew of the envoy. The story of this elegant gentleman and how the city happened to be named for him was told in the Times-Herald of Burlingame. Today's chapter relates how Mr. Burlingame would have scaped a fortune had he retained land he purchased here in the early days.
